RESEARCH INTERESTS

Strong background in experimental psycholinguistics and quantitative methods. Particularly interested in cognitive processes related to language processing, attention, and learning. Specifically, my doctoral work investigates the perceptual learning of non-native lexical tones from a cue-weighting approach.

EDUCATION

PhD Speech and Language Sciences , Newcastle University	Sep. 2021 – Dec. 2025
• Thesis: An incremental cue-weighting approach to lexical tone training
• Supervisors: Dr. Laurence White and Prof. Ghada Khattab
• Investigated the training effect of incrementally exaggerated acoustic cue in lexical tone perceptual learning.
• Method: Designed 5 experiments on Gorilla to explore conditions where perceptual benefits of pitch cue enhancement would sustain. Tonal stimuli were re-synthesised based on speech recordings in PRAAT.
Quantitative data were analysed in R via Generalised Linear Mixed Models through a Frequentist approach.
M.A. Linguistics (Distinction) , The University of Manchester	Sep. 2019 – Dec. 2020
• Key modules: Psycholinguistics, Phonetics and Phonology, Sociolinguistics, Syntax
• Dissertation (score 78): Contextual Effect on Second Language Production of Mandarin Tone 2 and Tone 3
Examined contextual effect on tone production of L2 Mandarin learners.
• Acoustic analysis in PRAAT: normalised tone duration and F0 of large sets of speech recordings.
Statistical analysis in R mainly used linear regression models.
B.A. English Literature and Language , Donghua University	Sep. 2015 – Jun. 2019
• Dissertation: A study on McDonald's Advertising Discourse from the Perspective of Attitudinal System Exchange Programme (Outstanding Exchange Student), Lingnan University	Jan. – May. 2018

WORK EXPERIENCE

Newcastle LingLab manager cover < link >	Jul. 2025 – Sep. 2025
• Co-ordinating with IT or other services online/offline, e.g., for subscriptions or maintenance.
• Ensuring lab setup/access prior to recordings/experiments.
Newcastle Phonetic and Phonology (P&P) research group student convenor	May 2025 – Present
• Updating research website < link >, e.g., blogs and design.
• Co-ordinating and supporting group meetings, workshops, seminars, and events.
Statistic research group student convenor	Mar. 2022 – Present

- Scheduling and leading statistical workshops.

Student school/course representative, Speech and Language Sciences Department

Dec. 2022 – Sep. 2024

- Co-ordinated between staff and students to improve research culture and community.

TEACHING EXPERIENCE

Tutor: experimental methods related, Newcastle University

Sep. 2022 – Dec. 2025

Key modules: Quantitative Data Analysis in R, Phonetics I and II, Language variation & change: dealing with data

- Developed lab materials and led tutorials using relevant tools including R and PRAAT. Marked assignments.

Teaching Assistant, Newcastle University

Sep. 2022 – Dec. 2025

Key modules: Phonetics I and II (school of ECLS), Phonetics & Phonology (school of SELLL)

- Provided phonetic ear training of the IPA chart.
- Marked assignments and arranged one-to-one student consultation hours.

Guixue, Language School

Jun. 2019 – Aug. 2019

- Developed course content and led 4 modules for IELTS. Improved students' scores on average from 4.5 – 6.

RESEARCH & TRAINING EXPERIENCE

Collaboration, Newcastle University

May. 2023 – Dec. 2024

Collecting Big Data Through Citizen Science: Gamification to Data Collection in Sociophonetics

- Identified research objectives, designed experiments, and conducted data analysis.
- Co-ordinated between team members and completed the manuscript as the first author.
- Disseminated outcome in academic conferences and public events.

The 7th & 9th Summer School on Statistical Methods for Linguistics and Psychology (SMLP) Aug. 2025 / Sep. 2022

- Attended workshops on Bayesian analysis and Foundational methods in frequentist statistics.

Speech annotation cross-validation for a PhD colleague

Nov. 2025

- Manual correction for automatically aligned annotation for Italian-English bilingual speech data in Praat.

Research Assistant in Many Speech Analyses <link>, Newcastle University

Oct. 2021 – Jan. 2023

- Segmented and annotated German speech data from a psycholinguistic experiment in Praat.

Research Assistant in Acoustic Phonetics, Newcastle University

Oct. 2021 – Mar. 2022

- Segmented and annotated dysarthria speech in Praat.
